CITY OF PORT ORANGE ANNOUNCES NEW GIS-BASED INTERACTIVE MAP FOR CURRENT CITY PROJECTS

Port Orange, FL, November 1, 2019 — The City of Port Orange Community Development and GIS (Geographic Information Systems) departments announce today a revised version of the Development Activity Report featuring a GIS-based Interactive Map, to update citizens and City Council on current residential, non-residential and roadway projects.

The former Development Activity Report was used in its previous form for over 20 years and was updated monthly. The new GIS-based Development Activity Report Interactive map will be updated weekly with the most current information available to staff and has searchable functions to easily locate any current Development Application, Public Hearing Application, or Roadway Project located in Port Orange, along with its submitted application and current plans (if applicable).

Additionally, city staff has generated a QR code to scan with a smartphone or tablet, which will automatically direct a user to the mobile friendly version of the Development Activity Report Interactive Map. The link can also be found on the City of Port Orange website, www.port-orange.org/developmentactivityreport, as well as a video tutorial explaining the layout of the Development Activity Report Interactive Map.

Hover over the graphic with your smartphone camera and click the link that appears to visit the mobile-friendly site.
